

Andy Carey was named Executive Director of the U.S.-Mexico Border Philanthropy Partnership (BPP) in September 2008. The BPP is a binational membership organization that supports a network of organizations that build prosperity through leadership, collaboration, and philanthropy in the U.S.-Mexico Border region. Since 2008, the BPP has grown to more than 110 institutional members from across the U.S. and Mexico, training hundreds of civic leaders and dispersing over $150,000 in technical assistance. Additionally BPP has engaged numerous national and international agencies to educate them about the actual realities and assets of the border region. Prior to joining the BPP, Andy served for 15 years at Kiwanis International. Andy served as a member of the Executive Management Team, and was responsible for leading growth initiatives throughout the Americas, Africa, Asia, Europe, and the South Pacific and led Kiwanis' Worldwide Service Project initiative in Latin America to virtually eliminate Iodine Deficiency Disorders. He completed his Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science and Foreign Language, and his Master of Arts degree in Latin American Studies. He is fluent in Spanish and Portuguese. He was recently named to the Adjunct Faculty at the University of San Diego in the School of Leadership and Education Sciences. Andy and his wife Lisa are the proud parents of four young children, Michael, John, Meredith, and Lauren.
