

Kit Carson Park

The park was named after Christopher (Kit) Carson, the famous scout who guided Captain John C. Frémont over the Sierra Nevada during a government exploration expedition. The park sits in a valley that is approximately 5 miles (8 km) west of where Kit Carson fought in the Battle of San Pasqual. A historical monument commemorating the battle is located on Mule Hill, one mile southeast of the park.

This beautiful regional park, operated by the City of Escondido, is comprised of 285 acres—100 acres have been developed and the remaining 185 acres have been preserved as natural habitat. The park has been described as the City's recreation hub offering a wide variety of features:

Queen Califia's Magical Circle Sculpture Garden is the only American sculpture garden and the last major international project created by Niki de Saint Phalle (born France, 1930–2002). Inspired by California's mythic, historic and cultural roots, the garden bears the brilliant, unique mosaic ornamentation that is an unmistakable part of Saint Phalle's later work. For hours of operation see queencalifia.org.
