I believe being the Mayor of a City is a position of service, not of power.

Escondido deserves a Mayor who is articulate, is analytical but compassionate, and has a history of logical decision-making. As Mayor, I will set a positive tone for how residents are engaged, how businesses are supported and how community challenges are met.

I will continue to be the strongest advocate of government efficiency and transparency – protecting your tax dollars from waste. I will insist on quality development, infrastructure upgrades and fair budgets that support core services such as libraries and public safety.

Honesty and hard work are qualities I embrace. I welcome public feedback and believe debate is a necessary part of the democratic process. I will work diligently to make Escondido a better place for everyone.

My focus will be on what is best for the long term well-being of Escondido - prosperity, safety and unity - rather than political ideology. We have common goals and if we work together, we can create a welcoming community to raise a family and grow a business.
