City of Escondido – Independent Districting Commission

2010 Census Block Population Tables

The April 1st, 2010 Census Population of the City of Escondido was 143,911. The total population that was 18 years and older, known as the voting age population (VAP) was 104,133.

The following tables contain the 2010 total population and voting age population for each of the City's 1,500 census blocks as well as, the population for the portions of the 92 census block groups and the 35 census tracts within the City's 2010 boundary.

These tables can be used in conjunction with the two reference maps provided by the Commission of the City's 2010 census block groups and census blocks to determine the total population and voting age population for areas within the City of Escondido.

The blue areas on the provided reference maps are the City's 2010 census blocks and the larger red areas are the 2010 census block groups. The light grey lines are city streets and the thick black line is the City of Escondido's municipal boundary, as of September 2013. The census block group number is indicated on the maps by the six-digit, red number in the box while the census tract can be determined from the first, five digits of the block group number such that census block groups 20103.1, 20103.2 and 20103.3 are all contained within census tract 20103.

The reference map titled, "2010 Census Block Population" details, by individual census block, the total population within the City. On this map the 2010 total population of each census block is indicated by the small blue number within the census block. The map titled, "2010 Census Block Groups & Blocks" can be used to locate individual census blocks within their block groups. On this map the census block number is indicated by the small blue number rather than the total block population. Both maps can be used in conjunction with the following tables to determine the population of areas within the city.
